

SOUTH EASTERN & CHATHAM RAILWAY

Ashford Railway Works

Chief Mechanical Engineer's Department

The Great War 1914 – 1918

Transcription by: David W Hughes and Neil R Clark 2004

The South Eastern & Chatham Railway (CME's department) Rolls of Honour bear testament to the enduring sacrifices made by the staff and employee's of the Ashford Railway Works who served in His Majesty's colours during the Great War.

These Rolls originally hung in the CME's Office at the former Ashford Railway Works. They remained there until the Railway Works were closed down in the early 1980's bringing 100 years of Ashford's railway heritage to an abrupt and disappointing end.

The rolls can be viewed in the Railway Room at Ashford Library. They hang on the wall quite high up which presents a problem for those interested in carrying out research on the men's names.

The first and second rolls are of men who served and survived the war. They do include some men's names who went on to lose their lives. The third roll is of men who fell in the service of their king and country.

The Transcriptions

This transcription was undertaken by the authors when it became apparent that the information contained on the Ashford Railwaymen Rolls could not be easily or properly read from where the Ashford Library displayed the rolls.

The authors were concerned to find out that no one had ever considered transcribing the rolls. One can assume from this that for the past 90 years or so, the information on the rolls has been at risk of being completely lost. There have been many examples of fires in Kent Libraries (the most recent being Margate Library that was almost burnt to the ground). Had a catastrophic event like this have occurred in Ashford Library before the rolls were transcribed, then the historical data on the railway rolls would have been lost forever.

From the point of view of Ashford's railway heritage, these rolls are amongst the most important and historic documents to be found anywhere. This transcription improves access to the biographical data on the rolls and also more importantly ensures the historical information can never be lost.

Once the Ashford Rolls had been documented it seemed a natural progression to carry out similar work on the Dover Marine Roll of Honour. Of course the Dover Marine Roll of Honour is not at risk of being lost like the Ashford rolls are. The names of the fallen here are inscribed on a large Portland stone wall. The authors are however unaware of these names ever being documented or researched.
